

Department of Global Studies
Thurber Awards

The Department of Global Studies offers the Thurber Award to support graduate students' professional development. The award is named in honor of the late Professor Clancy Thurber (a founder of our program.) Thurber awards are allocated on a non-competitive basis. Each graduate student in the GLOB program has access to Thurber funds in an amount indicated at the time of admission. While the award is not competitive, students do need to apply in order to access their Thurber funds.

To apply, submit the application below, along with required supporting documentation, to the Director of Graduate Studies (DGS) and the Graduate Coordinators. Applications are accepted and reviewed on a rolling basis. Please make sure to submit complete applications with all requested supporting documents.

Eligible expenses are any activities related to and supporting a students' professional development, and may include: costs related to research, costs associated with attending a professional or academic conference or workshop, costs related to language acquisition.
